SIX MILLION

Dollars is the Total Amount of Increase Made by State Board This Year.

CHARLESTON, Aug. 7.—The total valuation of all public service corporations assessed by the board of public works and made subject for taxes in 1912 is $296,038,047, or an increase over 1911 of $6,146,682. Practically two-thirds of the total valuation of public service corporations in the state is made up by the railroads, and considerable more than one-third of the latter classification belongs to the Baltimore and Ohio, the valuation of which is $77,650,000, an increase of $160,000 over the previous year.

The biggest increase in the eight different classifications is in the oil and gas companies, which amounted to $3,336,078, while the assessed value of the railroads increased $1,644,550.

The valuation of the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Western Maryland and Norfolk and Western railroads were not changed. The Virginia was increased from $5,000,000 to $5,500,000, and the Coal and Coke from $4,750,000 to $4,900,000. The Pittsburg, Cincinnati Chicago and St. Louis went from $1,800,000 to $2,000,000. The Wheeling Terminal was reduced $50,000 and the Randolph and Pocahontas $25,000. Six roads are assessed this year that were not assessed last year, while two that were assessed last year are not included in the list this year.

There was only one of the eight classifications in which there was a decrease—that of the express companies, and that was due to the fact that there was one less company assessed this year than last year.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON

Will Run with Him as the Second It of This Great Nation.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Arrangements were completed today for adjournment of the national Progressive convention following the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt for president and Governor Johnson, of California, for vice president. Roosevelt's nomination was made by William A. Prendergast, of New York, and seconded by Jane Adams, settlement worker and suffragette leader; Ben B. Lindsay, of Colorado; Governor Johnson, of California; H. T. Allen, of Kansas; Horation C. King, of New York; P. V. Collins, of Minnesota; J. M. Parker, of Louisiana; and Lucius F. C. Garvin, of Rhode Island.

The platform builders worked all night to give it final form, and whip into shape planks satisfactory to Colonel Roosevelt. Immediately after the convention adjourns, the leaders will confer regarding the campaign. It is said that Senator Dixon will be the national chairman, and Oscar Straus treasurer. It was announced that Roosevelt and Johnson will take the stump, speaking in all parts of the country.

Roosevelt will meet the national committee Thursday morning when it will be decided where the national headquarters will be located.

The delegates were slow in assembling and it was 11:30 before the convention was called to order, the platform committee being still in conference with Roosevelt. The temporary organization with Beveridge in the chair was made permanent according to the report of the organization committee and the report of the rules committee changed the name of the party to the Progressive party, dropping the word national.

The new rules provided for representation in future conventions as on one delegate for each congressman and United States senator, and an additional delegate for each 10,000 votes cast for the Progressive ticket at the previous election. Formal adoption of the new rules was deferred until after a recess, and William H. Harkness, of New York, made a speech describing the activities of the Progressives in that state. He declared the people of New York are now as free as California and as progressive as Kansas. This, he said, had been accomplished in twenty-eight days. He said Roosevelt would get twenty-five per cent of the Tammany vote.

A motion to recess until 1:15 was received with cries of no from the floor.

Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, moved that the convention proceed with nominations, but Beveridge ruled him out of order, and Timothy Woodruff, of New York, opposed Allen's motion. William Flynn declared that a recess would delay things. Fort, of New Jersey, moved for a recess until 1 o'clock, and the motion prevailed.

Roosevelt spent the morning in going over the platform with the committee which had been submitted to him and he found a number of planks which he did not approve. With a stenographer and a few friends he retired to a private room to recast the document and a call was sent to the committee to meet at 12:30 to pass on the platform as it left the colonel's hands. It was learned that some differences of opinion developed in the committee and at times the debate was heated. Radical and conservative factions grew up and on some planks the committee was almost evenly divided. The liveliest debates were over the control of corporations and taxation.

The convention reconvened at 1:30. Some slight changes were made in the rules, among them being the addition of four women to the national committee as members at large. Nominations for president were then taken up.

MILITIA IS PAID FOR STRIKE DUTY

HISTORICAL

Picture is Being Shown To-
Picture Palace.

"Jane Seymour and Henry the Eighth of England," a picture of unusual high merit, is being shown at the popular Bijou theater today.

The historical intrigue of Jane Seymour to supplant Queen Catherine, of Aragon, in the affections of Henry the Eighth of England, is here re-enacted. The king and queen become incompatible and an anonymous note warns Catherine that the king's infidelity. The queen sends for Lord Crammar and, in the presence of Jane Seymour and other ladies of the court, fiercely upbraids him. Jane sees another opportunity to further her ambition to be queen, and joins forces with the enraged Crammar in an effort to influence the ruler against his wife. They place the king in a compromising situation in which he is discovered by the queen, whom he promptly divorces. Success seems assured to Jane Seymour, but an accident prevents her attendance at the king's country feast, where his majesty becomes infatuated with Anne Boleyn and discards Jane. It is a beautiful and thrilling story. Also showing today is a Maurice Costello in a fine Vitagraph drama, which is very interesting, and all is for the nickel. Do not miss it.

Costs the State More Than
$2,300 to Keep Soldiers in Strike Zone.

MORE MEN ARRIVE

Conferences between Governor Glasscock and Miners Continue.

CHARLESTON, Aug. 7.—Today the state militia on duty in the Paint creek strike section of this county and in Boone county is receiving its first pay, reminding some of the "boys" of the Spanish-American or Philippine wars, and there are a number of them in the district that have had the real experience, especially among the officers. Captain John C. Bond of the pay department, an evening will have paid in cash every one of the more than 4,500 men on duty. A score or more of the men who had not been at the Mt. Gretna maneuvers but have been ordered to report to their company commanders passed through the city last night and this morning and more are to follow.

An estimate of the daily expenses not including the transportation of the men, shows that it is costing the state more than $2,300 a day to keep the militia in the field. Conferences between Governor Glasscock and the miners were continued today.
